INSIDE STORY OF MORAN INCIDENT MAY BE REVEALED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison.—An indication that George Clark, former senate policeman implicated in the disappearance, during the 1923 legislature, of Senator Barney Moran, intends to divulge the moves the land him ask the senator to a chicken dinner, from which he did not return for three days, is given in a partial letter made public here today by a local newspaper. Clark opened his letter with a statement that he intended to place himself "in the right light before the people of the state regarding my actions with Senator Moran, in which he and I were connected up on an abduction chicken dinner."

"Used by Immel."
The former senate policeman declared that he was used by Ralph Immel, private secretary to the governor, and Frank Kuehl, chief clerk of the governor, saying he kept both of them thoroughly posted on all matters of legislation.
After telling of investigation work done for the civil service commission, Clark declared the Gary bill for education was the only bill of education came up for a vote and first was killed.

"I was then sent for and told that we had to get busy and settle down to work on this matter without waiting when the governor was without waiting," Clark is quoted as writing, "that a certain assemblyman had voted wrong on this bill and as we had the goods on him to see that he voted right."
Sent Elmer Hall.
"That night Immel told me he sent Elmer Hall to see him and Elmer Hall told the assemblyman that the governor was the only man standing between him and destruction. The next morning this legislator made a motion for reconsideration of the bill."
At this point Clark is said to have ended his letter. He is reported to have expressed his intention to tell all details of his legislative activities.

COAL STRIKE IN EFFECT DESPITE PINCHOT EFFORTS

GOVERNOR PERSISTS IN PARLEY TO PREVENT LONG TIUP.

WAGES BIG ISSUE Many Points Present Bargaining Possibilities, However, Is Belief.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Harrisburg.—The conference of anthracite operators and miners' representatives, which convened at 10 o'clock today to resume consideration of Governor Pinchot's peace plan, adjourned at 11:07 a. m. until 2 p. m. next Wednesday.
Spokesmen for both sides of the controversy left town immediately thereafter, declaring their positions unchanged.
Differences over the governor's proposal for a ten percent wage increase to all anthracite mine workers and over arbitration as ever when the governor re-assembled his conference. The day's meeting lasted scarcely a half hour, both employers and union leaders were in one room all of the period. Until Wednesday, when they come back, there will be no attempt on either side to arrange dealings that might end the work suspension.
Harrisburg, Pa.—Unsuccessful yesterday in an attempt to prevent a shut-down in the anthracite mines, Governor Pinchot began an effort to reopen the negotiations.
Operators, representatives and miners union officials, who refused his proposal, insisted on such particulars to block an agreement that might have kept miners at work, were called back into executive sessions to resume discussions. At the time, indications gave the impression that their differences had not abated in the interval.
Details Differ Widely.
The officials' words were given the governor yesterday, each framed in the manner of acceptance but widely separate in details. The governor, shutting himself up with the group of leaders for more than five hours, pleaded, argued and carried proposals from one side to the other, but the union's order for suspension of work went into effect at midnight.
One barrier to agreement lay in the governor's offer of a 10 percent wage increase, which operators said would grant without an added contract for a term of years, with provision for annual revision by arbitration.
The union reiterated refusal to accept arbitration. Subsidiary points concerning the eight hour day and the check-off system, which last the governor wanted the union to abandon, and recognition of the union presented other points of difference, but these were said to have bargaining possibilities.

ARNOLD PREDICTED CRASH, TESTIMONY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Superior.—That Victor H. Arnold, Madison, Bond company president, knew as early as February, 1922, that a crash was impending in the affairs of the company, was the startling testimony of Chester A. Lemmon, Madison, former general manager of the bond company, on the stand in federal court here in the trial of the charge against Arnold of using the mails to defraud.
In a conversation on Feb. 10, 1922, with the defendant, as he was being served lunch by negro butler in Madison, Bond company offices almost two months prior to the filing of a petition in bankruptcy by the bond company, Lemmon stated he was informed of the precarious situation of the company.
Arnold, the witness stated, predicted the crash in these words: "I may tell you something that will take you right up through the roof. I have everything fixed so that when the crash comes, if it does, there won't be anything left here but the air. They will come in here hollering their heads off and I will say 'take the air.'"
Lemmon also testified that Arnold had dictated the meeting of a number of alleged stockholders and directors meetings to a stenographer, while in reality the meetings never had been held.

GREECE IN APPEAL TO LEAGUE BRITAIN WILL NOT INTERVENE

All war dispatches by Gazette's Associated Press Leased Wire Service.

Geneva.—The council of the League of Nations today decided to take up the Italo-Greek differences next Tuesday and expressed the hope that meanwhile the two countries will commit no acts of such a nature as to aggravate the situation.

More Fleets on Way to War Arena

Rome.—Italian naval units which had been stationed at Specia and Venice now are steaming for southern Adriatic waters in full war status and eight transports are held in readiness in case there are further eventualities.

Greek Protest Against Action

London.—The Greek legation here issued the following statement this morning:

"The Greek legation has received news that the Italian fleet bombarded Corfu, which by treaty is neutral territory under international guarantee and that Italian shells killed several refugees from Asia Minor who were lodged in the school of police.

"This school is situated in the so-called fortress of Corfu, which, however, by the treaty is unarmed, the island being unfortified and only some old barracks existing there.

"The Greek government, after the rejection of its note in which it offered Italy full and due satisfaction including indemnity to the families of the victims of the crime committed on Greek soil, made an urgent appeal to the league of nations for intervention on the basis of the express terms of the league pact.

"The Greeks cannot but consider the occupation and bombardment of the neutral island of Corfu as a flagrant violation not only of the covenant of the league of nations, of which both Greece and Italy are signatories, but also of the Ionian islands treaty of 1863—an act of war without provocation and without any warning, committed by one member of the league of nations against another of its members."

British Consider This An Act of War

London.—Italy's action in bombarding and occupying Corfu, in contravention of the neutrality of the island, guaranteed in perpetuity by the treaty of 1864 in which Great Britain ceded Corfu to Greece, is considered in military and diplomatic quarters in London as tantamount to a declaration of war on Greece and as constituting a flagrant violation of international law.

The greatest apprehension is felt over possible further moves by Italy. If Italy should ignore the intervention of the league of nations and the independent efforts of the allied council of ambassadors for an amicable solution of the crisis the military experts here see the danger of war spreading throughout the southeastern Europe.

Greece to Accept League Decision

Athens.—Greece will abide by the decision of the league of nations in the dispute with Italy, Premier Gonatas announced to the press after the cabinet meeting today.

The premier said that the forts the Italian squadron had bombarded at Corfu had been placed at the disposal of the Near East Relief by the Greek government for the housing of refugee orphans.

The Premier announced officially that some of the orphans were killed and said that although he did not know the exact number he understood it was 15.

Whole Matter to League of Nations

Geneva.—A communication from Greece submitting the Greco-Italian crisis to the league of nations was received today at the league headquarters, thus automatically bringing the conflict before the council of the league, which now is in session here.

Athens.—An Italian submarine stationed in the Gulf of Comenita has fired on the Greek steamer Georgious, slightly damaging the latter.

The commander of the submarine told the Greek captain that the Italian admiral has ordered the closing of Corfu channel to Greek vessels and that no Greek steamers will be allowed to proceed from Piraeus to Corfu.

Rome.—The Greek authorities at Corfu today were blamed by the Italian government in a semi-official statement for the necessity of the firing at Corfu yesterday.

The Italian government has officially announced the occupation of Corfu probably will be the limit of Italian advances for enforcement of sanctions and that there consequently probably will be a short breathing spell.

There is an air of satisfaction in Rome, that the government has been firm and prompt in its action.

Telegrams pour in upon Premier Mussolini from all kinds of patriotic clubs and associations praising the government for its decisive course. In some quarters it is urged that Greece make a quick settlement to avoid an increase in the amount of Italian reparations which would be caused if armed occupation were necessary.

England to Act If League Fails

London.—Great Britain will intervene actively in the Greco-Italian imbroglio only if Italy refuses to accept arbitration by the League of Nations, the council of which meets at Geneva today to consider the whole critical situation.

It is announced the government thus far has not instructed the British ambassador at Rome or the diplomatic representative at Athens to use their good offices toward settlement of the dispute, it being felt that the controversy for the moment is one for the league to settle.

Meanwhile, however, the government is taking all prudent precautions and measures to prevent Italy making her occupation of Corfu permanent, violation of the existing neutrality agreement. Various units of the powerful British Mediterranean fleet now released from service in the Dardanelles are within easy access of Corfu and in a position to block further moves by Italy if the Rome government refuses to listen to the league.

The whole trend of opinion in England, however, seems to be strongly set against becoming involved in near eastern complications if it can possibly be avoided.

Corfu Governor Held by Italians

Athens.—The governor of Corfu and ten officers are being detained aboard an Italian warship, while the garrison of 150 men has retired to the interior of the island.

The premier Gonatas, in a statement declared that despite Signor Montagna's assurance the attitude of Italy was purely hostile. The premier added:
"We have referred the matter to the league of nations and shall await its decision with which we shall comply. No reply will be given to the second Italian note."

Greece has protested to the powers against the bombardment of an unprotected fort, against the killing of refugees and generally against what is called here a violation of international law.

MOVE GREEK SHIPS TO PORT OF SALAMIS

Rome.—A message received by way of Corfu says the Greek ships at Philaeron have been moved to Salamis (Salamis is an island lying a few miles west of Piraeus, the seaport of Athens).

ITALIAN RESERVISTS NOTIFIED TO BE READY

London.—Italian reservists residing in London have been notified to hold themselves in readiness for a call to the colors in event the necessity arises.

BRITISH FLEET IS NOT SENT TO IONIA

London.—There is no truth in a report that the British Mediterranean squadron has been ordered to Ionian waters. It was officially stated today. No special movement of British ships has occurred, officials said and no vessels have been diverted from their ordinary duties.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF AMERICANS ON CORFU

New York.—Fearing for the safety of American and Canadian relief workers on the island of Corfu, as well as refugees, officials of the Near East Relief have issued the following statement:

Aged Woman Has Many Quaint Reminiscences

MRS. CATHARINE STEWART

By SADETTIE HARRINGTON.

Elkhorn—Callers on Mrs. Catharine Stewart Mills, Elkhorn, may go to entertain but they will come away entertained. Although almost a centenarian, born in 1828, she charms and interests with her quaint reminiscences of her childhood home in Livingston county, western New York.

Her family was United Presbyterian, and in that day allowed no musical instrument in the church. Mrs. Mills recalls a Scotch woman saying she would like the church if the Psalms, which they intended, were revised; and one Sabbath morning when the revisions were sung, "the lady picked up her cushion and walked out." Another woman, also Scotch, found nothing in the states as good as in Scotland—"not even the eggs were as good."

Mrs. Mills takes improvements like the automobile as matter of course and she laughs at the boxed-up carriages in which they rode to church, the door of which opened and steps were let down for the dainty misses to reach the ground. She also enjoys the late inventions and uses the telephone as readily as the young.

Mrs. Mills does not recall hardship in her early days. She takes pride in the fact that her first school house was a little frame building with the old study benches. She speaks only of pleasant things but wonders how her parents and others of their day lived when it was so hard and black and for travel, seeing bears to frighten as they went to neighbors, chopping down trees to build log houses and clearing the timber to plant crops; going 10 miles to mill with a sack of corn on the back and so on.

Her father taught school both in Scotland and New York and never did manual labor until he farmed in the new country. She says her later home with a fire place in every room and a large porch, even built in for baking, was quite a comfortable house; the beech nut and hickory nut groves were luxuries. Her father succeeded well in his working days, but suddenly when he was run over by horses, he left $1,000 to each of his 10 children.

Catharine Stewart came to Walworth county when 17 years old to visit a married sister, Mrs. James Lauderdale, and enjoyed the big west. She was married to Edmund Mills in 1851 by a Rev. Mr. Kinney, Presbyterian minister in Whitewater, on her brother Peter Stewart's farm, now owned by Severst Taylor. Her wedding procession was embroidered and all made by hand. The Turk satin gown of blue is preserved and with other garments is still beautiful to see. She went to Chicago to the sales south of Little Prairie on a farm later owned and known as the Wallace Weldon farm. They had only three rooms the first year, then two more were built and they worked hard and saved until in five years their place "was elegant for that day."

Mrs. Mills has no hard luck or sorry stories to tell, she neither broods nor laments her life in the past. She looks 75 instead of 95, but does not tell how she took 50 years from Father Time by enjoying life with people and things. Life has been sweet enough for her to keep sunny, keen and serene, she believed "the best is yet to come."

PLAN APPROVED TO SAVE MILLIONS IN SHIP CONTROL

a merchant marine. He pointed out that not only did America need her own ships as a measure of economic protection in time of peace, but as an indispensable auxiliary to the navy in time of war.

Protection to Shippers

Mr. Coolidge realizes that while the shipping situation means that the federal treasury must make up the losses annually the few millions involved are a small sum compared to the protection to American shippers against arbitrary raises in freight rates which would inevitably occur if shipping were a monopoly held by foreign countries. If the government's fleet is ever turned over to private interests, the latter must be in a position first of all to guarantee the maintenance of certain trade routes, as well as rates, that are equitable, and must also be ready to pay the government a good price for the ships.

The offer received thus far for ships have not commended themselves to the government as being in line with either of the foregoing points, so the shipping board is going ahead with its operation of the fleet, but is to build subsidiary companies so that each will be a going concern and have a better market value than if the ships themselves were to be offered for sale.

Can Operate Ships

The government will, in other words, demonstrate the fleet can be efficiently operated by using the best methods of the private business. Then if it is apparent that the government can break even or incur only small losses by the plan, private owners will be able to calculate upon greater economies and make a better bid for the ships and the negotiations that go with them.

A Permanent Personnel

With, however, a group of subsidiary companies to operate the lines they can be bought outright by private interests, the personnel would be insured of a certain degree of permanency. They will go with the ships. The morale of the shipping board's employees has recently been disturbed by the uncertainty over the future. The announcement that a decision has been reached and that the subsidiary company idea is going through will be of considerable encouragement to those on the anxious seat who were wondering whether to go to foreign shipping lines or other businesses.

To Consolidate Lines

Mr. Coolidge is very much impressed by the opportunity the subsidiary idea offers to consolidate lines and operate with even fewer ships than heretofore and do the same or even a greater business. Duplication will be eliminated and numerous pennies reduced in fact it would not be surprising if the executive found occasion on recommendation of the shipping board to ask for a much smaller budget than heretofore. As for the legality of the new plan, only a few members of the board have been in doubt about it. The Panama Canal corporation and the United States Grain corporation are sufficiently recent to offer precedents that will be helpful, for in both cases the government owned the stock. Indeed no legal obstacles are really expected to be found, but if they are, then the organization of subsidiary companies can still be developed without corporate form, though latter would be more practical and more advantageous in attracting shippers who dislike the idea of being unable to sue the government for claims and adjustments. They could sue the subsidiary corporations as readily as foreign shipping lines incorporated under state laws in America.

CLASSIC CONCERTS IN APOLLO COURSE

Unprecedented Season for Janesville Music Lovers
Is Assured.

October 20—Chicago Operatic Trio.

January 21—Alberto Salvi.

April 19—Florence Macbeth.

These are the numbers and dates
of concerts to be presented during the season of 1923-24.

It is a remarkable program for any city no matter what the size and means, remarkable that it should be arranged for a city of 20,000 population. Three months' work have been devoted to arranging for these artists and Janesville will have a season of music unprecedented.
It will be noted that only three concerts will be given this season. It was thought by the club that this would be preferable with a trio of the highest class numbers, rather than more concerts with a possibly less appealing program.

Last season's success, both from the point of music and the box office, has made it possible for the Apollo club to enter on a more expensive list of artists with the hope that Janesville would give in return
that high appreciation which was so marked last season.

First Concert Oct. 20.

The concert will be Oct. 20
and will be presented by the Chicago Operatic trio which is composed of Messrs. Lazzari and Lamont and Irene Pavloska. Judging from the praises of these artists wherever they have appeared, it will be a musical treat for Janesville. Lamont has considered one of America's foremost tenors. He has a fine voice and has sung in the most beautiful tone. Lamont has sung
the tenor roles in several popular operas presented by the Chicago Opera company and previous to joining this company of artists was at the Imperial Theater, New York,
for the grand season. He made his debut at the Imperial Theater, New York, in 1921, when he made his debut
with the Chicago Opera company.
He was selected by Mary Gordon to
appear in the leading bass roles.

Called upon to sing a wide variety of roles, Mr. Lamont has sung the Polish Canadian mezzo soprano, has acquired herself in a manner which
has shown her to be an artist of unusual ability. She was a prima dona
of the Imperial Theater, New York,
for the grand season. He made his
debut at the Imperial Theater, New York, in 1921, when he made his debut
with the Chicago Opera company.
He was selected by Mary Gordon to
appear in the leading bass roles.

Considered the world's greatest concert harpist, Alberto Salvi comes before Janesville audience Jan. 21
as the second concert arranged by the Apollo club. Born in Italy in 1893, Salvi inherited his love of the instrument, his playing of which he acquired himself in a manner which
has shown her to be an artist of unusual ability. She was a prima dona
of the Imperial Theater, New York,
for the grand season. He made his
debut at the Imperial Theater, New

A New York musical critic wrote that Florence Macbeth, coloratura soprano, is "unquestionably the most coloratura soprano this country has produced." If this is a fact it makes interest in her Janesville appearance April 19, the more intense.
In her career in concert, Miss Macbeth has achieved many great successes, the greatest of which was probably in "Lucia." In one appearance in this opera the audience applauded Miss Macbeth for the entire 20 minute intermission.
The Apollo club has secured the Janesville high school auditorium for the concert. Season tickets will be sold in advance.

and indications point to this number
of alarms being exceeded this year.

alarms in August, Chief C. J. Murphy reported.

ROME DENIES REPORTS OF SEIZ- URE OF TWO ISLANDS

Rome—Official announcement was made this afternoon that there was no truth in the reports circulated in foreign countries that Italian forces had occupied either the islands of Samos or of Crete.

OCCUPATION OF CORFU IS ONLY TEMPORARY

(By Associated Press.)
Rome—Admiral Solari, commanding the Italian fleet, today
has addressed a proclamation to the people of the island, outlining causes and nature of the occupation
which he says is of a temporary and peaceful character.

It will remain so, the statement
asserts unless the attitude of the people oulges the commander to take military measures for the protection of the Italian troops.

The proclamation is similar to Premier Mussolini's statement to Italy's representatives abroad, declaring that the Greek government had repudiated "the just demands of Italy" in terms substantially equivalent to a complete rejection, asserted that by the occupation of Corfu Italy had no intention of committing an act of war, and was only seeking to safeguard her prestige and manifest her unshakable determination to obtain the reparation due her in conformity with custom and international law. The occupation,
he said, was a temporary measure.

Mussolini's decision that the Greek reply could not be accepted
has been received everywhere with the greatest enthusiasm. Many government supporters point out that the allies always insisted on ample indemnity when a French or a British subject was killed in Germany.

chicken dinner tomorrow and Labor day at Charley Bluff. Or, bring your picnic dinner and enjoy our numerous amusements.

Gibson—Yes, but dang it all, I haven't enough money to hire a cook.

Let the passion for America east out the passion for Europe. They who find America insipid, they for whom London and Paris have spoiled their own homes, can be spared to return to those cities. I not only see a career at home for more genius than we have, but for more than there is

—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

Crime and the Courts.
The severest criticism of the courts especially in regard to the handling of criminal cases in the last three years has come from the American Bar Association, the greatest organization of lawyers
in the world. At the sessions of the convention
just closed in Minneapolis attention was again
directed to this phase of the operation of the law.
Dilatory tactics and tangled methods in practice were given consideration. Chief Justice Taft has said that the "administration of criminal law
in the United States was a disgrace to civilization."

It will probably be impossible for some small town attorney to say the Chief Justice of the United States has ulterior motives in speaking so plainly of the criminal practice. But the Chief Justice adds, "The trial of a criminal seems like a game of chance with all the chances in favor of the criminal, and if he escapes, he seems to have the sympathy of the sporting public."

The report of the special committee on law enforcement is startling if not appalling. In no
year during the last ten did the number of home-icides fall below $500. In New York city in one year there were 260 murders and three convictions
in the first degree. In all the United States in 1919 there were 94 executions. The whole fabric of the criminal procedure is wrong, according to this committee. A smart lawyer can defeat justice almost anywhere. Recommendation of a permanent commission of the Bar Association was made that a new standard code might be formulated for all the states of the union. It was wisely recommended that the faddists and theorists be excluded from such a commission.

But the Chief Justice in one address on this subject, and he is quite well qualified to speak, as he has, since coming to the bench, made a careful investigation of the methods of European courts in handling criminal cases, said that "There is a tendency to regard the judiciary in lighter esteem than formerly because of the small-
like pace of justice which discourages and finally wears out the man of small means."

But more than that everybody concerned agreed that there must be an awakened public conscience, more attention to the courts and actions
by them, pressure for speedy trial and a higher public respect for the law.

To that service the Gazette is devoted. It will not be swayed from that purpose either by wilful misconception of motives, time-serving persons giving support to the devious ways which are condemned by the American Bar association, or by any other collateral considerations.

The operations of justice should be for all,
equally and without favor. The poor should have equal chance in court with the rich and powerful.
Political power also as a factor in the administration of justice should be ended forever. Officers of the law should be given the backing of those responsible above them.

There will be higher respect for the courts,
higher regard when it loses its small-joke pace and fewer persons of small means are worn out and discouraged. And when the courts are fully purged—and by "court" is meant all the court
officers, its machinery from arresting officer up to the bench—above the suspicion of being actuated by any motive outside of justice, "unarmed by influence, unbribed by gain," then there will be a greater and more deeply seated confidence in our judiciary. We have judges who battle to maintain all their ethical and altruistic ideas but who are unable to go far with the code
of practice now permissible.

We must have courts and the machinery surrounding them in the various offices. They are the bulwark of our national system of republican government from the highest to the lowest court.
No greater service can be rendered to the American people than that of the program of the American Bar Association by which the courts are purged of the practices that permit offenders by the thousand to go scot free.

The wildest moment in many a girl's life is Kalamazoo has passed a dance ordinance making it a double offense for partners to look into each other's eyes. But supposing a partner has a glass eye? Would not that be an extenuating circumstance to be given cognizance by the court?

William D. Rockefeller left a fortune of $75,

to the fact that we are taxing profits and making surtaxes when we should wipe out exempt securi-

for issuing bonds.

Taking Stock of Mental Health

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

New York.—A healthy mind in a healthy body is the new slogan of personal fitness. We have heard a great deal about the importance of physical perfection and about preventing disease. The national committee for mental hygiene is impressing on the public a less familiar fact, namely, that mental disease also is preventable.

There is an increasing amount of mental disease of various types. Nervous breakdowns and more severe forms of mental troubles are common. The war added to the strain. This led to wider study along psychiatric lines. And now the public, as well as the specialist, is aroused to interest in the workings of the mind.

This self study may be helpful or not, according to the soundness of the theory and the temperament and understanding of the individual.
Some psychologists say many people are playing recklessly with their minds as they would not dare to play with their physical well being, and that there may be danger in applying a mental cure-all formula merely on the grounds that it has helped some one else.

Dr. C. J. D'Alton, of the committee on mental hygiene, says doctors are coming to appreciate the importance of treating the individual as a whole, and of not confining their attention to those parts which appear to be affected. They realize that many physical symptoms cannot be understood, because organic conditions are not always present to explain the disorder. It is necessary frequently to analyze the patient's personal situation, working conditions, home circumstances, his mental and emotional habits, personality, and other factors before an explanation is found.

Doctors recently graduated from a number of medical schools have been given training in psychiatry. They are not mental specialists, but they have a fundamental knowledge of mental diseases. The medical department of most of our university schools of medicine has an endowed chair of psychiatry, and it is predicted that in time all prominent medical schools will follow this example. It also seems likely that the increasing scope of medical training will necessarily lengthening of the medical course to five years. This step is now planned by several colleges.

Every big clinic has had its psychiatric department for some time, but treating the mind is still rather a new thing for the general practitioner.
Mental hygiene is new too for social welfare centers and colleges. An expert in mental problems has already been attached to the staffs of some welfare organizations. A few years ago the idea that there would be anything for a mental specialist to do at a college would have been laughed
at. A questionnaire recently sent to a number of colleges revealed that a fairly large percentage of students have difficulty in adjusting themselves to life. The question has been raised as to whether carefully given advice would not keep some of these students from developing into cranks,
grouches, nervous wrecks and victims of interfering complexes.

The importance of a satisfactory adjustment to life has been recognized for some time in the courts. But even here practical attempts to help individuals to adjust themselves have not become the rule. The mental hygiene committee has been sending out a traveling clinic to demonstrate the possibilities of such an institution in handling delinquents. The clinic first remained with a court in St. Louis for six months, and at the end of that time a permanent institution was established there. The same procedure took place in Norfolk and Dallas, and the traveling clinic is next to visit Milwaukee.

Two interesting facts about the mental health question are to be noted. The word insane has been dropped by specialists. They point out that insanity is a legal term, and they leave it to the courts to decide whether a man is sane or not.
They prefer to speak in terms of mental disease.
The other interesting fact is that mental disease
is used to include all kinds and degrees of such trouble. It is reported that the strong feeling against the word mental is fading out. Once, a person with a nervous breakdown would have thought it a disgrace to be considered a mental case. Now, every sort of unsatisfactory adjustment to life is considered in this category.

The fact is, there is no such thing as absolute physical perfection and there is no fixed standard of mental normality. A satisfactory adjustment to life in a village community is different from adjustment to life in a metropolis. That is, what is loosely considered normality may vary with places and circumstances.

The purpose of a national committee for mental hygiene, so far as the public is concerned, is
"to help the individual to acquire a better understanding of the instinctive forces back of his physical, mental and emotional life so he can bring it under more conscious control." To further this, the committee is working with the national health council to urge the public to have periodic health examinations, both of mind and body. The national health council, composed of the 14 principal national official and voluntary health organizations of the country, is urging that at least 10,000,000 Americans have health examinations. With the slogan "Have a Health Examination on Your Birthday" this campaign was inaugurated on July 4, 1923 and will last until July 4, 1924.

Dr. D'Alton says: "The advice to secure periodic health examinations for the benefit of one's mental health does not necessarily carry with it
the implication of determining whether one is mentally sound or unsound, though it is obvious that the adoption of this custom cannot fail to contribute a great deal toward the prevention of mental diseases. Many of the patients in state hospitals, and private sanatoria, probably half,
are suffering from mental disease, and many of them have been prevented if symptoms had been recognized and treatment instituted early. But the traditionally bigoted and mistaken attitude that regards mental disorder as a disgrace instead of a disease has operated to obscure the danger signs
and no hand has been raised to avert the final breakdowns that have taken these persons to
the hospitals."

He further points out that this attitude has been reinforced by the common fallacy that these disorders occur suddenly, whereas no one ever became insane suddenly. Mental disease develops over a long period of time and the final breakdown comes as a surprise because the signs are not recognized.

The periodic physical examination is based on the principle that disease conditions may develop
in the body of which the individual may be totally unaware. Even more subtle and hidden changes may take place in mental development,
we are told. Starting as a nucleus, they may form a center which, in the course of years, collects other factors until the cumulative effect is a distinct disturbance of the mental equilibrium of the individual. Dr. W. J. Mayo has this in mind when he said neurosthenia, psychasthenia, hysteria and other nervous disorders are the cause of more human misery than tuberculosis or cancer.

on the average 4,000 letters a day offering and pledging support for 1924. These letters come from every part of the United States. Secretary Mellon is on the Coolidge band wagon along with Secretary Work. It looks very much Coolidge
by the look out at the masthead.

The president's secretary came from the land where "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" was located. He ought to be able to discover several political trails.

It looks as though the next national convention of the republican party would be a ratification
of the nomination of Calvin Coolidge.

JUST FOLKS

A PLEA FOR GROWTH.
Let me grow taller with the years,
Above the petty things of pride;
Let me look out and far and wide
Beyond the underground world,
The hidden corner wrong and right,
The little meannesses of life,
The loss or gain of selfish strife,
And let me see when I grow tall
High purpose glowing through it all.

Let me grow bigger with the years,
Too big to do the petty thing
Which for advantage leaves a sting;
Too big to sneer at simple worth,
And honest toil and gentle mirth;
Too big, no matter where I am,
To try to hold my place with sham;
Too big, if I possess a foe,
To strike at him a cowardly blow.

Let me grow wiser through the years—
Wiser in gentleness and truth,
Wiser in knowledge of the youth,
Wiser in living, let me learn
That whatsoever I may turn,
Some better grows, that wealth nor fame
Cannot surpass an earnest name.
And let this growth in wisdom be,
Such as to make a man of me.

DISCONTENT.

I often wish that I might, vagabond
To where the white clouds are held unique;
Past outposts of my race, and then beyond
That port or renegades that I would seek.

Out where the sea is languid, blue and warm,
Where night begins a bit of heavy fire;
Some land of tropic death and fever storm—
With love a name  and creed but a desire.

Yet though I feel the call of dusky isles,
I know that where the land is, there is a room,
Some one who knows the world's ten thousand miles
Would trade them all  for one small dream
of home.

Magnus Johnson, the new senator, is already yelping about "hard times." If he is having hard times, what does he think of us who wear

One thing we shall never be able to figure out
is why Polignac was such a retiring person

while premier of France.

Who's Who Today

QUEEN MARIE OF ROMANIA

Queen Marie of Roumania is known as the most beautiful and fascinating queen in Europe.
She is also called the "Queen Mother." Her daughters now occupy European thrones.

The oldest, Elizabeth, being the wife of George II of Greece and Marie, the second, queen of Yugoslavia.
The wife of King Alexander.
Rumor has it that the youngest daughter, Ileana, now in her teens, is to be betrothed
to a prince or king as soon
as her father will warrant.

Not content with placing
her children on thrones, the Queen is now said to be using her charm to effect results in the Balkans, who the English and English governments. Not only is her daughter queen of that country, but her son, the crown prince, is married to Princess Helena of Greece, hence her interest.

Before her marriage Queen Marie was Princess Marie Alexandra Victoria, daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh, son of the late Queen Victoria of Great Britain. She was eighteen years old at the time of her marriage to the then heir
to the Roumanian throne. Her younger son, Prince Nicholas, is being educated at the famous English school of Eton.

The queen is now forty-eight years old. It is said that it was largely her influence that swung Roumania to the side of France and England during the world war. She was an ardent worker, flinging open the palace to be used as a hospital at the beginning of the war and herself helping with the care of the wounded.

PROTEIN AND BLOOD PRESSURE

I have refrained from joining in the hue and cry against that essential element of food—protein. I haven't anything against protein which it comes in the form of "heat-
sinks or eggs or milk or peas or nuts,
though I accept the dicta of such authorities on nutrition as Graham Lusk and Dr. Hinde, who state that many of us better, with less protein than we are in habit of consuming. Instead of a daily ration containing 40 to 50 grams, a ration furnishing 30 to 35 grams is about right.
(About 30 grams would be equivalent to one ounce.)

Another thing I give myself credit
for—I haven't stressed blood pressure here. Blood pressure is a thing we all have to have. It is good for us.
If some of us get a little too much pressure it is only incidental. It isn't the cause of what ails us. It is a symptom of some other trouble.
Often, too, an excessively high blood pressure is better left high, for without increase in the pressure the increase would not have an adequate circulation.

Somewhat if has become the popular ration that meat is the important cause of high blood pressure. I know that meat is a source of meat
from which some persons are fond of deducting uric acid.

Just to settle the question—you
all have to have it. It is good for us.

The Riddle of the Spinning Wheel

By M. E. and T. W. HANSHEW

Being an Exploit in the Career of Hamilton Cleek, Detective Copyright, 1922, by Doubleday, Page & Co., and published by arrangement with McClure Newspaper Syndicate of New York City.

"In good time, Miss Duggan. First of all, the ways and means. Look—see that spinning wheel. There stands your guilty party in that innocent guise. The hand that guided that wheel killed Sir Andrew as surely as I am standing here. And how? An air-pistol. And you own an air-pistol in this place, Mr. Ross Duggan?"

"It's a lie—a damned lie! I'll have you to law for it, too!" Ross Duggan started, his face crimson, his knotted, eyes flashing at this plain implication of himself. "Damn you, whoever you are! It's a lie! I did not kill my father! I swear it with the sacred book itself! I did not kill him!"

Cleek held up a detaining hand. "And who, may I ask, said he did, my friend?" "You," he returned, smiling. "If you will give me a little time to tell my story in my own way, I shall be extremely obliged. You stand self-confessed as the owner of an air-pistol. That is a fact. The rest will follow in due course. But here is the instrument of death—the little spinning wheel, which, wired by electricity as it is, and with the pistol hidden inside that wheel with diabolical ingenuity, was the death of your father. And who among you, may I ask, has such a perfect knowledge of electricity as to equip the thing like that?"

"Aha! there was silence; meanwhile each looked at the other and the same name framed itself unconsciously upon every tongue. Ross Duggan, it was not spoken aloud, but Cleek could read it as he looked about him. Then Lady Paula spoke.

"The man—was Ross? It was that unflinching and cruel son of an unknown and innocent old man, just as I knew it to be?" she shivered, and turned to her feet and excitedly, she turned to Ross and seizing him by the shoulder as though she would tear him limb from limb.

"Wicked, cruel creature that you are! Ungrateful—beast!"

Cleek caught her sharply by the arm and spun her around, though she had been made of paper. His face was grim.

"One moment," he cried in a sharp staccato. "This lady is going to give trouble. We'll then the present act be delayed no longer. Constable—bring in your prisoner."

"He gave a shrill whistle, strode across the room, flung the key into the lock and in an instant there was pandemonium. For of a sudden there was a stifled scream from somewhere in a woman's voice shrieked out, "Oh, I cannot bear it any longer—I cannot! I cannot!" Then the door of two policemen, who had slung between them the stooping figure of a man, closely handcuffed, and with a dark scrub of beard showing upon his unshaven chin, came another scream; a shrill voice lifted excitedly, "Uncle Antonio!" followed by a scuffling of a man's footsteps. Cleek took a quick step forward in the midst of all the confusion, caught at someone's sleeve and held it in a grip like a vise, yanked open a sharp voice, "Catch him, Dolores! Catch the beggar before he slips out through the open door and gives us the go-by—the beastly brighter!" Then, all in a moment, he was fighting and twisting and doubling to regain his hold upon the man who was trying to escape; there was a muttered curse, and a flash of red hands as one could see in a lock, and—the end had come!

Brushing a piece of dust from his sleeve as P. C. Mackay snapped the bracelets upon still another prisoner. Cleek turned and surveyed the room with flushed cheek and flashing eye. "Friends," he said blandly, "your man—your murderer. Caught," as red hands as one could see in a lock, and—as innocently as a babe, too!"

And pointed toward the man, fighting figure of James Tavish!

CHAPTER XXVIII
To Secret of the Singing Wheel
The scene that followed this startling announcement can well be imagined rather than described. For even as the man stood glowering at them, his mouth muttering the curses that his heart held, came a new diversion from another quarter. For Catherine, Dowd, had, had, had, out sharply, "Quick! quick! some smelling-salts here—and brandy!" and as the women of the party endeavored to produce one item, while the men more successfully produced the other, it was seen that Johanna McCall was the object of this aid, for she half-lay, half-sprawled upon the floor, mouth open, face twitching, eyes already staring over, and the white froth forming about her pale lips.

Cleek leaned down and lifted her head in his hand, and looked down into her upturned, glassy face.

"Gad!" he said under his breath, "and now the other one—self-confessed! Who'd have thought it?—who, indeed? And for what reason, I wonder?"

"For him—for Ross—for the man I love," the pale lips framed the words brokenly as the strength of the girl sagged and ebbed slowly away. "He would have disinherited him—disinherited Ross—turned him out—penitence! Cruel—wicked—I stabbed him with—the attle—the light went out—caught it off the table—spilled it on her dress—must have been mad—mad—but you can't get me! It's poison—arsenic. I had it ready. And I needn't have done it—after—"

TODAY'S RECIPES
Baked Ham.—Boil ham first. When tender take out of water and peel the rind off. Then stick the whole ham with cloves very close together, add which two heaping tablespoons of brown sugar is sprinkled over it. After it has begun to bake and is a little brown add three tablespoons of vinegar and one-half cup of water.

Potato Souffle.—Potato souffle is made from potatoes boiled soft and mashed. Then take the yolk of an egg and beat it until it is light and fluffy, then mix with the other. Place in a casserole and put in oven and bake a golden brown.

Cheese and Cucumber Salad.—Have the cream cheese very dry. Salt and pepper it, then mold into round ball. Slice large cucumber in thin slices around the cheese and cover all with your cream.

Green Tomato Pie.—Make pie crusts as usual, making enough for upper and lower crusts. Take four medium sized tomatoes and slice them thin. Sprinkle with one-half cup of brown sugar and dot butter over. Then take three teaspoons of vinegar and three tablespoons of water and pour over this, and flavor with nutmeg. This tastes very much like mincemeat.

Blackberry Pie.—Sift four teaspoons of baking powder with one and one-half cups of flour. Add one-half teaspoon of salt and moisten with milk, enough so that the dough will drop, quite thick, off spoon; then take one teaspoonful and drop into each cup. Put two tablespoons of stewed blackberries into this dough and drop another tablespoon of dough on top of the berries. Bake the cups into a steamer and let steam from 40 to 60 minutes. The dough should be a scant tablespoonful. When done, run a knife around cup and lift out. Take the sweetened juice of blackberries and serve over them and a tablespoon of whipped cream. These are splendid any kind of fruit can be used in the place of blackberries.

PRESERVING
Spiced Grapes.—Wash grapes, grapes, four pounds sugar, three cups of vinegar, four sticks cinnamon, one ounce whole cloves, two blades mace. Remove and set aside the seeds of the grapes; cook the pulp in the vinegar with the spices tied in cheesecloth, till the grapes are soft. Pass as much as possible through a fine sieve, keeping back the seeds. Add the skins and return to the fire; when boiling, put in the sugar and bag of spices. Cook till thick, and then put into glasses and seal.

Jelly.—In making jelly that won't jell, such as peach, squeeze the juice of a lemon in it and it will jell beautifully.

on a four-hour schedule, and 12 for the three-hour schedule.

If the baby is seven months old the formula to start with may be three ounces of milk and three of water, in which carrots, turnips, spinach and celery have been cooked, strained and cooled. Add one level tablespoon of sugar to this bottle. If the baby shows any marked bowel activity the vegetable water may be replaced with plain water for a few days and then the baby may be returned to the vegetable water. The next time, vegetable water may be added, and any food is liable to stimulate the bowels, but if it is not bad it may be ignored.

If the baby takes this bottle well, a week's time need not be spent in the same proportion of water and milk, but using just plain water instead of vegetable water for all feedings except one, may be added. This can be continued until the baby is getting four bottles a day and only one nursing. This one nursing may be continued until the baby is 10 months old.

THE MANICURE

I have a wealthy acquaintance whose exquisite finger nails I have always admired. They are the real almond shape, they are always beautifully pink, just glossy enough; they show perfect moons at the base, and are always perfectly kept. I knew she had a lady's maid and thought her nails were tended daily by that efficient person. One day I happened to ask her.

"Dear me, I always do my nails myself," she answered. "I have for 10 years. I'm much too nervous to still while someone fusses over my fingers. I've a lot of things to do, and I don't have time to be fussed. The things were only the usual files and scissors and buffers, a bottle of bleach and little pots of rouge and polishing powder and cream. Most of us possess as many things, though perhaps not of the very expensive kind this woman used."

I thought afterwards that if she could keep her nails so beautifully herself, so could any woman. It is not entirely a case of leisure with her, she did a lot of rough hospital work during the war, and her hands when were always perfect; today she is busy with endless activities. To be sure, she doesn't wash dishes (she did during the war) but if she did I feel sure she would pull out water proof gloves, and when she was through sit down and do up her nails as pinkly and prettily as before.

Some women are like that. Are you? The woman told me that she had rather ugly nails when she was a girl. "They've improved," she said. "I compared them once with the nails shown in an old photograph when I was 12. But one needs some compensation for being 38, don't you think? I didn't have wrinkles then, even if I did have ragged finger tips."

HEART AND HOME

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl nearly 17 and will be in high school this year. I have been going with a boy whom I like very much. He lives next door to me and I think he likes me as much as I do him. He has been writing to a girl who is away visiting and she is soon to return home. Although he has asked her to go places with him she has never accepted his invitations, but has let him go home with her from a few parties.

I know he likes her and I would like him to like me better than he does her. Sometimes he tells me he loves more of me, but at other times I don't think he does. When she returns I want him to go with only one of us.

Please advise me what to do when the girl returns.

COCA COLA.

There is not the slightest reason why the boy should not go with you and the other girl as well. If you want to spoil your friendship with him, the quickest way will be to interfere with his going with the other girl. He will want to feel independent and if you insist on going with him, he will like you the less for it. Simply leave the matter to him and he is more apt to be faithful to you. It would be most unwise to let him think you are jealous.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 15 and have a girl friend the same age. She tells people everything she hears. I have a boy friend and she tells him things I said to break up our friendship and he tells me about it. He now thinks I am angry at him. I shall I quit the girl. I don't like her anyhow, and I have several other girl friends.

Since the girl has proved false to you, I would advise you to drop her. Do it tactfully, however, or she may do all she can to hurt you. Speak to her as you have always done, but choose some other girl to be your close friend. If you speak to the boy and do not appear unpleasant, he will realize that you are not angry at him.

ularly. I gave her my phone number to call me up when she wanted me to come to see her. One Saturday she called me and said I could come Sunday. I went and on Wednesday after that she got a letter from a girl stating if she ever heard of her speaking to me again she would beat her.

"The girl I care for is angry at me now. I have tried in vain to win her back and she won't speak. What would you advise me to do?"

THANK YOU.

You are giving me little choices in the matter since the girl for whom you care refuses to speak to you. Since you mean so little to her that she will let the rat stand in the way of her help, I advise you to advise her to forget about her as quickly as possible.

Perhaps it would be just as well to ignore the girl who is jealous this time. If she repeats her offense, tell her you will turn her letter over to the police. She has no right to threaten people in that manner.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I met a fellow two months ago. He asked to correspond with me. He dropped me a card and I wrote a letter back, but that is all I heard of him. Would it be proper to write again, or wait for an answer? FORSAKEN.

Wait for an answer and do not write again unless it comes.

Stocks Go Up to Higher Ground in Week's Markets

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York—Stock prices continued their rise to higher ground in this week's markets, despite intermittent bear selling and profit taking. Pools were again active and commission houses reported an increasing public interest. In many quarters, the threatened suspension of anthracite mining, the unfavorable economic developments in Germany, and the serious differences between Greece and Italy were regarded as restraining influences on trading.

One of the most important constructive developments during the week was the formal announcement of a resumption of diplomatic relations with Mexico. It was immediately followed by a brisk advance in Mexican government securities and stocks and bonds of companies having large property interests in Mexico.

Revival of speculative interest in the railroad shares was generally attributed to the reports of record August car loadings and the July earnings reports.

Sugar shares were firmer on announcements of higher commodity prices and reports of an early resumption of dividends by two of the Cuban companies.

Copper shares were depressed following the drop in the price of the red metal to 13½¢, the lowest price of this year.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the establishment of another new low price for the year by sterling and the further collapse of German marks to 8½ cents a million.

al sales reported since the first of the year.

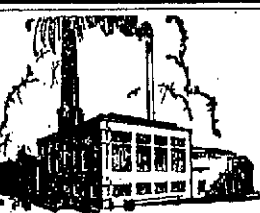

The aggregate sales of 128 manufacturers for the first six months of the year were at an annual rate of $204,000,000, or approximately 75 per cent of the total 1921 production reported by the Census Bureau.

July production measured by employment statistics was 92.1 per cent of normal for the month, compared with operations during June at 85.0 per cent of the normal for that month.

Reports from manufacturers differ considerably, some reporting a decreased demand for their products, and others increasing business. Several manufacturers have a good volume of business booked for future delivery, although once reported large cancellations. There is still some scarcity of labor according to a few reports.

Money is earned too hard to be swindled out of it

The Little Steamboat With The Big Whistle

Mark Twain wrote of the Mississippi river steamboat with such a large whistle that every time it blew it stopped the boat.

Most get-rich-quick schemes, in which you are asked to buy stock, are like this steamboat. The crooked promoters use so much steam blowing the whistle, that there is none left to run the boat.

In other words, no legitimate concern can AFFORD to peddle its stock from door to door and pay stock salesmen exorbitant commissions; no legitimate concern can AFFORD to spend such huge sums to advertise its stock, as the "blue-sky" schemers pay. There would be too little money left to run the business.

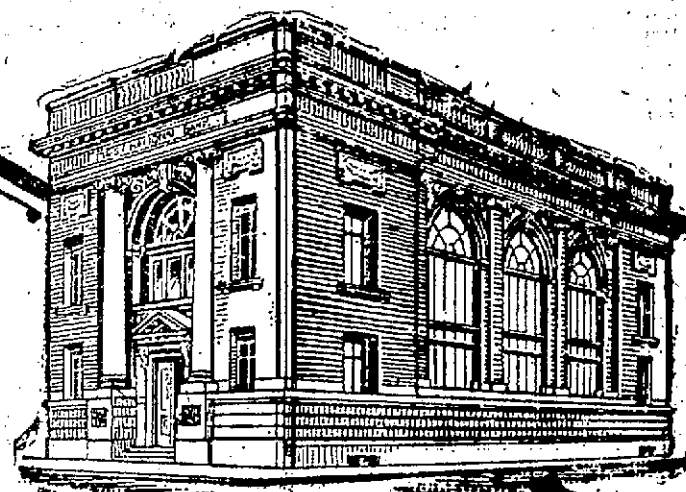

But these financial buzzards care nothing about what becomes of the business after they have made their clean-up. They are not concerned in whether or not the company fulfills their extravagant promises. What they are mostly interested in is getting your money before you have a chance to Janesville--and The First National Bank Working Partners for 60 Years.

Next week the First National Bank of Janesville will be sixty years old as a national bank, and sixty-eight years old since it first opened its doors in the struggling little frontier town of Janesville.

Throughout the years The First National Bank has kept pace growing with Janesville and helping Janesville to grow, by consistently supporting every worthy enterprise and making itself part and parcel of the municipality.

The First National Bank, moving with its partner—sometimes slowly, hand in hand—has walked upstanding through good times and bad, through bright days and dark ones. Is it odd, then, this real affection between the bank and the town?

Countless men who approached our cashier's desk in the eighties, poor and unknown, we greet today as substantial men of affairs, prominent in their chosen callings.

The great majority of the bank's early patrons have passed on but the names of their children and grandchildren appear on our books.

Other generations of depositors will follow, for the old First National, having kept the faith and built upon bedrock as solid as the town itself, will live on forever.

Assets in excess of 3½ million dollars. Deposits over 3 million dollars.

British plans to make Singapore in the Dutch East Indies a "Gibraltar of the East" is causing considerable apprehension among other nations and is arousing opposition in England from statesmen who believe the plans violate, at least in spirit, the terms of the four-power naval treaty. Japan and Holland particularly are alarmed over the idea of a British stronghold at the southern tip of the Malay peninsula. The Dutch because they believe Britain aims to make their fleet merely an auxiliary of the royal navy and the Japanese because of the recent abrogation of the Anglo-Jap treaty. The map above shows the strategic position of Singapore.

Omaha, Neb., is slowly recovering from a paralyzed water system caused when a mud bank on the Missouri river, near the intake of the city water, gave away. The entire population was compelled to resort to drinking spring and well water, many having themselves inoculated against typhoid and other contagious diseases which might be spread by drinking impure water.

FRANK B. STEARNS TELLS OF CALVIN COOLIDGE

Almost unique in politics is the place of Frank W. Stearns in the life of Calvin Coolidge. This Boston merchant who has retired from much of the care of business has always been a friend to the president. Mr. Stearns's estimate of the man whom he long ago recognized as one of the ablest of his generation in Massachusetts politics, will be of interest to the public, which is as yet waiting to form its own opinions and judgments of Mr. Coolidge. The following interview with Mr. Stearns is by the Washington correspondent of the Boston Traveler:

Washington, Sept. 1.—The following report was read: The undersigned met with Mr. J. P. Cassius Julius Paulus, Jew, Roman, Christian

REVIEW OF THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 2, 1923.

Read The Acts.

WM. SOUTHERN, JR.
About the year that Jesus was born in Bethlehem a man child was born to a Roman couple in Tarsus of Cilicia. His father was a freeborn citizen, a Jew of the tribe of Benjamin. The boy was therefore a Roman citizen and the lives of the two children became inextricably entwined. We do not know that Paul the Roman ever met Jesus the Nazarene, but we do know that he did become the greatest Apostle of Christianity and that nine books of the New Testament are of his writing.

The Jewish name of the boy born in Tarsus was Saul, the name of the first king of Israel who was also of the tribe of Benjamin. As a Roman boy he might have been called Cassius Julius Paulus. Of his education we know little. He was destined to be a Rabbi and after the grade schools of Tarsus was sent to Jerusalem to the church seminary and one of the best of the time. Saul was a fine student, his mind was a legal mind, he became the strictest of Pharisees advocating the letter of the law. When his success was about complete, if there were difficult affairs of church to be carried out, Saul was selected.

Then came Jesus, sweeping over Judea with his denunciations of the Jewish church and his contempt for its technical law. Saul was of course on the side of the High Priests. We meet him first when Stephen was stoned and he stood up to the stoning. He watched and watched the proceeding.

In a book said to have been written by an Asian Presbyter about A. D. 150 is the description given of Paul: "A man small in size, bald, bow legged, sturdy, with eyebrows meeting and a slightly prominent nose, full of grace. In an education in Rome in 122 for a garage was a church was unearthed on the walls of which were several portraits. Two of them have been heralded as the portraits of Paul and Peter. This picture of Saul bears out the description quoted from the ancient writer.

The story of Saul's conversion on his way to Damascus when he saw a vision of Jesus, the man he had seen crucified and whose followers he was even then persecuting and killing is familiar to all students of the history of the church. It is a story of a man's work, of his preaching, how he threw his whole life into Christianity, of his missionary journeys, is told in the Acts. Legend has it that Paul was a man of a long life, after a long imprisonment, after he had preached to thousands, established churches over the known land, after he had stood before kings and emperors, he died a martyr. But that of his mission, after an adventurous life given up to one purpose. So identified with Christianity is the work of the Apostle Paul that some students of the history of the church have said Jesus or upon his life, but by Paul and upon his interpretations and writings.

It is not hard to be a Christian now-a-days. In deed it is hard to be a Christian in the United States, a nation founded on Christianity, the biggest and best of the world, the constitution and into the laws. A man is not called upon to give up his life or even his money in order to become a Christian. He does have to keep his conscience clear and has about 200 to pick from and he usually joins the church of which his mother was a member, where he attended Sunday school and where he has heard the doctrine are familiar. Most of us do not even know the doctrines of the church to which we belong. Some, perhaps, perish the thought. Men are called upon to live in the church in the town where they live and expect all the other members to send their business or pave their way into the best society.

Saul the Jew, when he became Paul the Christian, gave up everything dear to his former life. He was a man of a long life, after a long imprisonment, after he had preached to thousands, established churches over the known land, after he had stood before kings and emperors, he died a martyr. But that of his mission, after an adventurous life given up to one purpose. So identified with Christianity is the work of the Apostle Paul that some students of the history of the church have said Jesus or upon his life, but by Paul and upon his interpretations and writings.

It is not hard to be a Christian now-a-days. In deed it is hard to be a Christian in the United States, a nation founded on Christianity, the biggest and best of the world, the constitution and into the laws. A man is not called upon to give up his life or even his money in order to become a Christian. He does have to keep his conscience clear and has about 200 to pick from and he usually joins the church of which his mother was a member, where he attended Sunday school and where he has heard the doctrine are familiar. Most of us do not even know the doctrines of the church to which we belong. Some, perhaps, perish the thought. Men are called upon to live in the church in the town where they live and expect all the other members to send their business or pave their way into the best society.

Saul the Jew, when he became Paul the Christian, gave up everything dear to his former life. He was a man of a long life, after a long imprisonment, after he had preached to thousands, established churches over the known land, after he had stood before kings and emperors, he died a martyr. But that of his mission, after an adventurous life given up to one purpose. So identified with Christianity is the work of the Apostle Paul that some students of the history of the church have said Jesus or upon his life, but by Paul and upon his interpretations and writings.

Power to Stop!

Buick Four-wheel Brakes

BUICK four-wheel brakes provide a factor of safety welcomed by every driver. No matter how careful he may be there are moments when the power to stop his car quickly and surely averts a serious accident.

Buick four-wheel brakes operate simply by light pressure on the foot pedal. There is no change in the method of operation over former Buick rear wheel brakes.

Buick rear brake construction has proved its dependability for many years. Identically the same principle, simple in its mechanism and effective in its braking control, now has been employed on the front wheels.

The adoption of four-wheel brakes by Buick on its 1924 cars is wholly in keeping with its policy of giving the owner everything that will increase his safety, comfort and satisfaction.

The 1924 Buick cars likewise are distinctive for their beauty, their increased power, ease of operation and comfort—giving features never before found on motor cars.

The Trouble Shooter

Timely Tips for the Auto Owner.
By E. H. SCOTT
Copyright 1923.

Overheating is a common complaint, but fortunately is a trouble that can generally be remedied very easily. There are a number of defects that can cause overheating, but a systematic inspection and examination will soon reveal which particular one is causing the trouble.

The illustration above will show you the most important points to watch. If a Radiator has not been flushed and cleaned out for some time, the sediment and scale that forms inside the tubes and water jackets may be obstructing the free circulation of the water. To remove this deposit, first drain off the water in the radiator to see how many gallons it holds, then add one pound of common washing soda for every gallon of water. Pour this mixture into the radiator, then let the engine run for a few hours. Draw off the dirty water and remove the bottom water connection, then take a hose with a good pressure behind it and let the water run through until it comes out clear and clean. If there is any mud between the fins or coils of the radiator, remove it by squirting water through from the rear. Be careful in doing this that you do not wet any of the Ignition units. Cover them up.

If the hose connections are very old, the rubber covering inside the hose may have peeled and curled up, so obstructing the flow of the water. Fit new hose if the present hose appears to be perished or old.

Examine the level of the oil in the crank case. If it is very low, the engine will not only overheat, but will knock badly as well. How long is it since you changed the oil in the crank case and supplied it with fresh oil? If you have not had the crank cases drained during the last 1,000 or 1,500 miles, it is quite possible that here is the cause of your trouble. After 500 miles running, the oil is diluted very heavily with the gasoline that finds its way into the crank case, and destroys the lubricating properties of the oil. When this dilution gets very bad, the engine starts to heat up because the oil has not sufficient body to lubricate the engine properly.

Examine to see that the Fan Belt is not broken or too loose. The belt should be adjusted so that you can just pull it over the pulley with two fingers. Be careful you do not adjust too tightly, as this throws a strain on the bearing, causes it to wear very rapidly, and at the same time will cause the belt to stretch and break. If this is your first car, you may not know that if you run for any great distance with the Spark Lever retarded, the engine will overheat. Always drive with the spark lever advanced as far as possible. You can generally keep it fully advanced at speeds of 20 miles an hour and over, and only require to retard it slightly when you slow down or when climbing a hill and the engine is pulling hard.

If you have been running with the spark lever in the correct position, lift up the hood, then have some one move the spark lever up and down while you observe the Distributor head, to see that it moves when the spark lever is moved. Sometimes the connections become loose or disconnected, then the distributor does not move at all when you move the spark lever, with the result that you are running all the time with a retarded spark. This will not only cause the engine to overheat, but will also considerably reduce the power and pep of the engine.

If you find that the engine knocks badly when you advance the spark lever and stops when you retard it, it is a fairly certain indication, especially if the engine shows signs of overheating, that there is a considerable amount of carbon deposit in the cylinders which must be removed.

Carbon deposit is probably the commonest cause of overheating. This trouble is caused by leaky piston rings, too much oil in the crank case, poor grade of oil or an unsuitable oil, diluted oil, or Carburetor carbon. The Carbon deposit can be removed by taking off the cylinder head and scraping it out, or it can be burned out with the oxygen process. If you have it removed by the oxygen process, have it done by an experienced man, as if this operation is unsatisfactorily performed, you are liable to have the pistons burned or warped. The best method is to scrape the carbon out.

A Carburetor that is adjusted to deliver a mixture that is either very rich or very lean will cause overheating, especially if you are driving with a heavy load in hilly or sandy country. Instructions showing how the Carburetor should be adjusted will be given in an early article.

Always keep the Radiator filled with water and clean it out two or three times a year; drain the old oil out of the crank case every 500 miles, then use a GOOD grade of oil; watch the Fan Belt to see that it is always kept properly adjusted; run with the Spark Lever advanced as far as possible at all times, and you will not only prevent overheating, but your car will run better and give you longer service and less trouble.

We Must Be a Nation of Home Owners

By DR. G. I. DEAN

The strength of our nation is expressed in our homes, the glory of civilization is founded on our homes, and about all the stability of our government depends upon Home Ownership.

The desire to own a home is one of the natural instincts of every real man. A rented house can never become a real home in the highest, truest sense. No family can ever acquire that deep-seated regard and heart-felt affection for a rented house that is naturally developed toward a home which they own. What incentive is there for a man to preserve or adorn a rented house when he knows that his landlord may any day order him to vacate?

But, when the place which shelters him and his loved ones is their very own, when no one has the right to raise his rent or order him to move out, then every member of the family becomes inspired with love for the place in which they live; they become interested in its adornment and beautifying; every tree and flower and shrub which they add to its surroundings, every new day they live there, adds to the tender, loving associations entwined about it, until HOME becomes one of the sweetest words in human speech.

The gratifying of this deep-seated desire to own a home, and the toil and sacrifice and self-denial by which it is won, refines, elevates and ennobles men; it inspires in them a self respect and inspires in others a respect for them that makes better men and better citizens, better husbands and fathers—gives them a standing and position and influence in the community that never can be attained by mere "tenants" or "renters."

The ideal home is a castle of genuine love—the tower of enthroned friendship, the cathedral of every pure joy, the walled city of every sacred relationship, the round-table of social communion for all the highest forms of human intercourse and intellectual exchange. There you will find a woman's heart, a husband's strength, a father's wisdom, and a child's awakening consciousness.

If, in your present vocation, you are not making money enough to provide for the future by building or buying a home for the sake of yourself and family, burn some midnight oil—do something else. We were not created as idle playthings, to fool our precious lives away. We were created for a great definite purpose, and that purpose is to be successes in every sense of the word. I do not believe that the Supreme Ruler of the Universe ever created a man to be a failure. The good things that are in this world were not put here to tantalize man, but for him to possess, providing he does his part. When you see people around you having homes, don't rave and blame the universe, the government, or bad luck. Just look to yourself, find out where the trouble lies, correct that trouble, put your goal high, work with determination to win that goal. If you do constructive thinking enough and work hard enough, you can attain that high ideal—The Ownership of Your Own Home.
